

Doctor Discussion Guide

Making the Most of Your Office Visit

Talking to your baby’s doctor is very important. It can help you develop a better understanding of infantile hemangioma, the impact it may have on your baby, and the treatment options that are available.

To make the most of your office visit, it is best to be prepared. Bringing a list of questions to ask your baby’s doctor can help you make sure all your concerns are addressed.

Here’s a list of questions you can ask during your visit:

Questions About Infantile Hemangioma

1. What examinations and tests will my baby need?
2. What should I watch out for with my baby’s infantile hemangioma?
3. What happens to the hemangioma over time if left untreated?
4. What are the possible complications?

Questions About the MEDICATION

1. How does the medication work?
2. Is this medication right for my baby?
3. How quickly can I expect treatment with the medication to work?
4. What are the side effects associated with this medication?
5. How long will my baby need to take the medication?
6. How do I get my baby started on the medication?

Feel free to use the notes section below to write down any additional questions you may have, or to take notes during your visit.

Notes

After Your Office Visit

You should come away from your office visit feeling confident that you have an understanding of infantile hemangioma and the treatment options available. If you have any further questions after your visit, don’t hesitate to follow up with your baby’s doctor.